NEWS & UPDATES

How to Avoid Complaints

You are not alone if you scan the enforcement actions at the back of the Board Report to make sure you don't see your name or the name of anyone you know. However, you can put your mind at ease knowing that you can easily prevent many of the common situations that get CPAs in trouble with their clients and the Texas State Board of Public Accountancy (TSBPA). If you follow these suggestions, you should be able to substantially reduce your chances of having to spend time and resources responding to complaints.

Communication is Crucial

A majority of client complaints against CPAs the Board handles could have been prevented. How you may ask? Through clear and constant communications with your clients. Oftentimes, a phone call could have prevented an issue. Communicate with your clients frequently and notify them of the status of their file and give them an opportunity to ask what you are doing and why. If the work becomes more time consuming or complicated than expected, let the client know early on. It is better to relay bad news quickly and directly, instead of your client receiving an unpleasant surprise at an inopportune time. Set realistic expectations for your client. Follow up phone calls with emails detailing your understanding of the conversation and to provide documentation you can refer to later. "But I'm too busy to do this," you may say. However, responding to a complaint is likely to be more time consuming and aggravating than making the extra effort to avoid a complaint in the first place.

Be Proactive

Don't procrastinate in your engagements and client communications. If you do, you can put your clients in hot water if you miss important deadlines. If you are overwhelmed and are falling behind in your work, ask for help from support staff or other CPAs, and don't take on more clients than you can handle. Be proactive about returning client phone calls and emails in a timely manner. Also, respond to any communications from the TSBPA immediately. Ignoring TSBPA communications will not make the issue disappear. In fact, if you work with the Board we can sometimes resolve a matter without having to go through the complaint process.

Interested in Becoming a Peer Reviewer?

The Texas Society of CPAs is always looking for qualified peer reviewers with experience in accounting and auditing engagements.

To learn more about becoming a qualified peer reviewer, visit the Peer Review section of tscpa.org (under the "Resource Center" tab) or contact Jerry Cross, CPA, Director of Peer Review (jcross@tscpa.net or 972-687-8617).

Choose Your Clients Wisely

Sometimes CPAs try to take on every new client that crosses their path because they see potential for more business. However, we all know that there are “problem clients.” The repercussions of working with difficult people may far outweigh the benefits. Determine if your potential client is a high risk client.

If you decide to stop working with a client, be courteous and professional. Be sure to give your clients enough time to find a new CPA to work with so they can meet any deadlines they may have. Always send them a disengagement letter that documents the work you’ve completed and any outstanding work, as well as any deadlines or filings. Promptly return all client records when requested, whether there is an outstanding bill or not.

Continuing Professional Education

Completing your continuing professional education (CPE) requirements is critical to keep your license in good standing. You can report your CPE online anytime throughout the year. It is a good practice to record your CPE as you take it, so that you have a clear understanding of the credits that are due. Don’t wait until the last minute!

Licensing Fees

You will need to pay both your individual and firm license fees on time to keep your licenses in good standing. Be aware that your firm and individual license fees may be due in different months.

Compilations, Audits, and Reviews

The TSBPA often handles cases where CPAs have gotten in over their heads by taking on engagements they were not prepared to handle. You can create a lot of problems if you don’t have the right type of expertise for the engagement. It is better to acknowledge that you can’t do something. Audits, compilations, and reviews often involve complicated technical issues, large sums of money, and possible liability. A failed audit could result in substantial fines and penalties from the TSBPA and other regulatory bodies.

You should always keep your firm’s peer review current (once every three years). If your firm fails peer review, that is a red flag. Auditing standards issued by accounting and government regulatory bodies are in constant flux. You will need to be familiar with current standards to properly conduct engagements.

Keep your firm license current. The TSBPA frequently handles cases where CPAs performed compilations, audits, or reviews without a firm license. Board Rules require CPAs to have a firm license while performing engagements. Any audits, compilations, or reviews your firm provides without a firm license will be considered a violation of professional standards, may lead to disciplinary action, and the reissuance of the attest work.

Data Analytics Survey Findings

In April 2018, the Texas State Board of Public Accountancy conducted a survey to gather information from small to mid-size Texas CPA firms, which provide assurance services, about the type of data analytics concepts that are needed by CPAs in today’s marketplace. The Board also surveyed Texas educational institution business schools and accounting departments about data analytics courses that are available to students. A total of 27 firms and 25 educational institutions completed the survey and represented many regions across the state.

The following responses were received:

- 18 firms (66%) responded that they currently use data analytics in the attest services and professional accounting work that is provided to their clients.
- 21 firms (77%) responded that when they are recruiting accounting students it is beneficial that the students have a skill set in data analytics.
- 23 firms (85%) responded that it is very important that CPAs have data analytics skills within the next five years.
- 15 schools (60%) responded that data analytics concepts are incorporated into accounting courses.
- 21 schools (84%) responded that they offer discrete data analytics courses.
- Three schools (12%) offer undergraduate degrees, five schools (20%) offer graduate degrees, and 17 schools (68%) do not offer degrees in data analytics.
- 10 schools (40%) are not considering offering some form of discrete data analytics courses/degree, while 11 schools (44%) are considering it.
- 25 schools (100%) responded that it is very important that CPAs have data analytics skills within the next five years.

The Board’s Qualifications Committee reviewed and discussed the survey results and made recommendations to the Board for changes to Rules 511.57 (Qualified Accounting Courses) and 511.58 (Definitions of Related Business Subjects and Ethics Courses). The changes would allow an applicant to apply up to 12 hours in accounting data analytics and six hours in business data analytics classes toward their minimum hours needed to qualify for the CPA Exam. At its July 19, 2018, meeting the Board authorized the publication of the proposed rule amendments in the Texas Register for public comment, as revised by the Qualifications Committee.

UNAUTHORIZED PRACTICE OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTANCY

Help Us Identify Unlicensed Individuals and Firms Offering Accounting Services

Over the last three years, the Board's Unauthorized Practice of Public Accountancy Program has identified more than 1,700 unlicensed individuals and firms claiming to be CPAs or offering accounting or attest services to the public. Although this program has been very successful, we know that there continues to be false or misleading advertising. There are approximately 78,000 Texas licensees who can help protect the public from individuals and firms misrepresenting their qualifications.

If you suspect websites, signage, business cards, letterheads, or other marketing materials that are false or misleading, you may report it by calling 512-305-7866 or email enforcement@tsbpa.texas.gov.

Continuing Professional Education Actions

The respondents listed below were not in compliance with the Board's continuing professional education (CPE) requirements as of the date of the Board meeting. Each respondent was suspended for the earlier of a period of three years, or until the respondent complies with the licensing requirements of the Act.
